This course will cover a variety of topics about urban gardening in DC from garden design, organic management, critter proof composting, cooking what you grow, food justice, and many more. After the completion of this course each participant will receive a certificate and the knowledge and experience to create and manage a large variety of urban gardening systems. This course is seven weeks long, comprised of 16, 2-hour classes and fieldtrips, taught by experienced urban garden teachers who are currently creating and managing the District's urban agriculture movement. This is a chance to learn urban gardening from DC's leading urban gardeners.
